

For the Congresbury Chronicle.

Things are happening in our War Memorial Hall. The building is 100 yrs. old this year. Extensions made over the years have not improved the site and maintenance issues abound. However, a dedicated band of volunteers are currently working to bring the hall back to full working order. Decades of detritus has been cleared and acres of surfaces have been painted and cleaned. Development plans are currently being discussed over a way forward for the site. Below is a snap of the re-furbished entrance passageway.

Work is carried out during most mornings so if you see the front door is open why not pop in for a look?
